ABSTRACT

To inform states regarding their compliance with practices mandated by the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984, this document provides a state by state analysis of the effects of the amendment on state child support laws. Information for each state is divided into two sections. The first section lists state laws that contain many or all of the features required by the federal legislation. These laws include both those enforcement tools requiring legislation and those that may be accomplished without legislation. The second section presents areas of law that may be reviewed for statutory changes, and includes only those mandatory practices requiring legislation. Optional provisions of the amendments which states may wish to add to their programs to increase their effectiveness are listed in Appendix A. A list of states' complete statutory code citations is provided in Appendix B. Appendix C announces the availability of special funds for on-site technical assistance to aid state legislators working to improve their state's support enforcement programs. (RH)

The National Conference of State Legislatures is the official representative of the nation's 7,461 state legislators and their staffs.

NCSL was created in January 1975 from the merger of three organizations that served or represented state legislatures. NCSL is a non-partisan organization with three objectives:

- To improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures;
- To foster interstate communication and cooperation; and
- To ensure states a strong, cohesive voice in the federal system.

The Conference operates from an Office of State Services in Denver, Colorado, and an Office of State-Federal Relations in Washington, D.C.

INTRODUCTION

The Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984, P.L. 98-378, mandated sweeping changes in state child support enforcement programs and laws. This document is an analysis of the effects of this federal legislation on state child support laws.

The cornerstone of the 1984 legislation is the set of mandatory practices that must be adopted by every state. Chief among these practices are the enforcement tools that require state legislative action:

- o mandatory income withholding;
- o expedited process;
- o state income tax refund intercepts;
- o liens on real and personal property;
- o posting of bonds or security;
- o release of information to consumer credit agencies; and
- o paternity establishment until a minor's 18th birthday.

There are also practices mandated by the 1984 Amendments that may or may not be accomplished with legislation. These include:

- o services for non-AFDC clients;
- o guidelines for support awards;
- o health insurance provision in support orders;
- o enforcement of spousal support; and
- o services for foster care cases.

This analysis seeks to inform states regarding their compliance with these mandatory practices. The information for each state is divided into two sections. The first section lists state laws that contain many or all of the features required by P.L. 98-378. These laws include both those enforcement tools requiring legislation and those that may be accomplished without legislation. The second section presents areas of law that may be reviewed for statutory changes, and includes only those mandatory practices requiring legislation.

The Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 necessitate many other changes in the operation of state child support programs. State legislators may wish to consult with the director of their state's child support program regarding the fiscal impact of this law in their state.

P.L. 98-378 also suggests items states may, at their option, wish to add to their programs to increase their effectiveness. These optional provisions are listed in Appendix A.

The statutory cites used throughout this analysis refer to the sections of that state's statutory code. A list of the full code cites may be found in Appendix B.

Additional federal legislation has been passed since the last edition of the analysis. P.L. 99-509, signed on October 21, 1986, includes a provision (Section 9103) requiring states to have legislation prohibiting the retroactive modification of child support arrearages. Analysis of states' enactment of such a provision will be included in forthcoming updates of the analysis.

This analysis is one of a series of publications developed by NCSL's Child Support Enforcement Project. The project is in its seventh year serving state lawmakers who wish to improve their state child support programs. A complete description of the project and its services may be found on the inside back cover of this publication. An announcement regarding the availability of technical assistance is included in Appendix C.

NCSL and the Office of Child Support Enforcement are planning to keep this publication current by releasing updates of the legislative analysis for those states that enact further legislation. These updates will be made available to all of those who received this document.

ALABAMA

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Alabama Child Support program. The following provisions in Alabama law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Act 84-445, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 40-18-100 et seq., the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o Sections 6-9-210 and 6-9-212, which allow the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o Sections 26-17-14, 30-4-59, and 30-4-96, which permit a court to require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future child support payments;
- o Section 26-17-8, which allows the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday.

Modifications of and additions to Alabama law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- * Amending Act 84-445, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - *elimination of the need to return to court to initiate the withholding;
  - *provision limiting obligor's defenses to mistakes of fact in contested withholding cases;
  - *provision to allow State to allocate withheld amounts among multiple orders;
  - *provision stating that payment of overdue support upon notice of withholding cannot be used as the sole basis for preventing the initiation of withholding;
  - *provision for State to notify obligor of outcome of a contest, the withholding time frame, if appropriate, and the contents of the notice to the employer within 45 days of the contest;
  - *simplification of the process by the State, such as allowing the employer to remit all withheld amounts in one check;
  - *procedure for withheld amount to be sent to the State within 10 days of the date obligor is paid;
  - *procedure for notice to be sent to the employer immediately if the absent parent does not contest the withholding within the time frame available;
  - *designation by the State of a publicly accountable agency to administer the withholding system;
  - *provision for prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee;
- o Provision specifying mandatory use of an expedited process to establish and enforce support orders in intrastate and interstate cases and to include:
  - procedure for temporary orders to be entered by the expedited process in complex cases;
  - provision to protect the due process rights of the parties;
  - procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officers;
  - the functions performed by the presiding officers must include:
    - o taking testimony and establishing a record;

- o evaluating evidence and making recommendations or decisions to establish and enforce orders;
- o accepting voluntary acknowledgement of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
- o entering default orders if the absent parent does not respond to notice or other State process within a reasonable period of time specified by the State;
- * Amending Section 40-18-100, the state income tax refund intercept law, to include:
  - *procedure applies to all IV-D cases, including interstate cases;
  - *provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
  - *procedure for revenue agency to provide absent parent's address and Social Security Number to IV-D agency;
- * Amending Sections 26-17-14, 30-4-59, and 30-4-96, to include a provision requiring that the absent parent receive advance notice including the procedure to contest the impending action in compliance with the State's due process requirements;
- * Enacting a provision to:
  - * allow the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
  - * make procedure mandatory when arrearage is over $1000;
  - * include a procedure for advance notice to the absent parent and for an opportunity to contest the accuracy of the information.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

* An asterisk indicates those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

ALASKA

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Alaska Child Support program. The following provisions in Alaska law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 47.23.100, which provides equal treatment for AFDC and non-AFDC clients;
- o Section 09.65.132, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 47.23.020 et seq., the administrative process law;
- o Section 47.23.253, which provides for the intercept of any refund or disbursement by the Department of Revenue for the satisfaction of child support obligations;
- o Section 47.23.230, which provides for the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o Section 47.23.060, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Section 47.23.273, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 47.23.020 (a)(9), which provides for the inclusion of medical insurance in support orders;
- o Section 47.23.020 (a)(8), which provides for the collection of spousal support.

Modifications of and additions to Alaska law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- * Amending Section 09.65.132, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - *provision to allow non-custodial parent to request withholding at an earlier date;
  - *provision to allow State to allocate withheld amounts among multiple orders;
  - *withheld amount must be sent to the State within 10 days of the date the obligor is paid;
- * Amending Section 47.23.020 et seq., the administrative process law, to allow the entering of temporary orders and the accepting of voluntary acknowledgements of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid.

* Asterisks indicate those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

ARIZONA

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Arizona Child Support program. The following provisions in Arizona law contain many of the features contained in P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 12-2456, which provides for the equal treatment of AFDC and non-AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable for non-AFDC services;
- o Sections 12-2454 and 12-2454.01, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 12-298, the expedited judicial process;
- o Section 43-614, the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o Section 12-2455, which allows the imposition of liens against real and personal property;
- o Section 12-2453, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Section 12-2459, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 25-320, which provides for the inclusion of medical insurance in support orders;
- o Section 12-2454, which provides for the collection of spousal support;
- o Section 8-243.02, which provides for services in certain foster care cases.

Modifications of and additions to Arizona law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- * Amending Sections 12-2454 and 12-2454.01, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - *elimination of the need to return to court to initiate the withholding;
  - *provision for a non-custodial parent to request withholding at an earlier date;
  - *provision to allow State to allocate withheld amounts among multiple orders;
  - *procedure to implement the withholding no later than the first pay period that occurs after 14 days from the mailing date on the notice;
  - *provision for prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee;
- o Provision specifying mandatory use of an expedited process to establish and enforce support orders in intrastate and interstate cases and to include:
  - provision stating that the presiding officer cannot be a judge;
  - procedure for temporary orders to be entered by the expedited process in complex cases;
  - provision for orders to have the same force and effect as judicial orders;
  - provision to protect the due process rights of the parties;
  - procedure to provide the parties with copies of the order;
  - procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officers;

- the functions performed by the presiding officers must include:
  - o taking testimony and establishing a record;
  - o evaluating evidence and making recommendations or decisions to establish and enforce orders;
  - o accepting voluntary acknowledgement of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
  - o entering default orders if the absent parent does not respond to notice or other State process within a reasonable period of time specified by the State;
- * Amending Section 43-614, the state income tax refund intercept law, to include a provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
- * Amending Section 12-2459, which allows for the dissemination of information concerning the obligor's child support debt to consumer credit bureaus, to:
  - *make procedure mandatory when arrearage is over $1000;
  - *include a procedure for advance notice to the absent parent and for an opportunity to contest the accuracy of the information.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

* Asterisks indicate those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

ARKANSAS

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Arkansas Child Support program. The following provisions in Arkansas law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 23 of House Bill 316 (1985), which provides for the equal treatment of AFDC and non-AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable for non-AFDC services;
- o Section 6 et seq., of House Bill 316 (1985), the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 34-1237 and Section 34-701.2, which provide for the expedited judicial process;
- o Section 89-4904 et seq., the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o Sections 2 and 3 of House Bill 316 (1985), which provide for the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o Section 34-1211, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Section 29 of House Bill 316 (1985), which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 4 of House Bill 316 (1985), which provides for the inclusion of medical insurance in support orders.

Modifications of and additions to Arkansas law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- * Amending Section 6 et seq. of House Bill 316 (1985), the mandatory income withholding law, to provide that withheld amounts must be sent to the State within 10 days of the date the obligor is paid;
  - * Amending Section 89-4904, the state income tax refund intercept law, to include:
    - *provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
    - *procedures for prompt refund or distribution of collections.
- * Asterisks indicate those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

CALIFORNIA

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the California Child Support program. The following provisions in California law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 11475.1 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, which provides for equal treatment of AFDC and non-AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable for non-AFDC services;
- o Section 4701 of the Civil Code, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 12419.5 of the Government Code and Section 708.730 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o Sections 697.310, 697.320, and 597.510 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which allow the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o Section 4700 of the Civil Code, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Sections 4750 and 4751 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which allow the release of information concerning the obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 7006 of the Civil Code, which allows the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o Section 4720 of the Civil Code, guidelines to be used in the determination of support awards;
- o Sections 11490 and 11491 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, which provide for the inclusion of medical insurance in support orders.

Modifications of and additions to California law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Section 4701 of the Civil Code, the mandatory income withholding law, to include the triggering of withholding when the amount of arrearages equals the amount of one month's support;
- o Amending the expedited process to include a procedure for the entering of temporary support orders in complex cases.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

COLORADO

The federal Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Colorado Child Support program. The following provisions in Colorado law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 26-13-106, which provides for equal access to services for both AFDC and non-AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable for non-AFDC services;
- o Section 14-14-107, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 13-5-301, which provides for an expedited judicial process;
- o Section 26-13-111, the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o Section 13-52-102, which allows the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o Section 14-14-109, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Section 26-13-116, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 19-6-108, which allows establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o Section 14-10-115, guidelines to be used in the determination of support awards;
- o Section 14-14-105, which provides for the enforcement of spousal support;
- o Section 26-13-113, services for certain foster care cases.

Modifications of and additions to Colorado law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Section 14-14-107, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - the amount withheld includes current support and payment towards the liquidation of arrearages;
  - provision to allow State to allocate withheld amounts among multiple orders;
  - provision stating that payment of overdue support upon notice of withholding cannot be used as the sole basis for preventing the initiation of withholding;
  - provision for advance notice to be sent to the absent parent on the trigger date which includes the following:
    - o amount to be withheld;
    - o procedures and time frame for contesting the withholding on the basis of mistake of fact;
    - o notice that withholding applies to subsequent employment;
    - o State action upon receipt of contest;
    - o notice that withholding will commence if there is no appeal within said time frame;
  - provision for State to notify the obligor of outcome of contest, the withholding time frame, if appropriate, and the contents of the notice to the employer within 45 days of the contest;
  - simplification of the process by the State, such as allowing the employer to remit all withheld amounts in one check;

- withheld amount must be sent to the State within 10 days of the date the obligor is paid;
- procedure for advance notice to the employer which includes the amount to be withheld and any information necessary for the employer to comply with the withholding order;
- procedure for notice to be sent to the employer immediately if the absent parent does not contest the withholding within the time frame available;
- provision for the prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee;
- o Amending Section 13-5-301, the expedited judicial process, to specify mandatory use of the process to establish and enforce support orders, and to include:
  - procedures to provide the parties with copies of the order;
  - accepting voluntary acknowledgements of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
- * Amending Section 26-13-111, the state income tax refund intercept law, to include:
  - *provision for procedure to apply to interstate cases;
  - *procedures for contesting must comply with state due process requirements;
  - *provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
- o Amending Senate Bill 69 (1986) to clarify that paternity can be established until a minor's 18th birthday.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

* Asterisks indicate those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

CONNECTICUT

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Connecticut Child Support program. The following provisions in Connecticut law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Sections 17-31i and 52-259b, which provide for equal treatment of AFDC and non-AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable to non-AFDC clients;
- o Section 52-362, the mandatory income withholding statute;
- o Public Act 86-359, the Family Support Magistrate Act;
- o Section 7 of Public Act 85-548, which provides for imposition of liens against real and personal property;
- o Section 46(b)-215, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Section 7(b) of Public Act 85-548, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 46(b)-160, which allows for the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o Section 46(b)-84, providing that medical insurance may be included in child support order;
- o Section 52-362, the collection of spousal support;
- o Section 46(b)-130, which provides services for certain foster care cases.

Modifications of and additions to Connecticut law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Section 52-362, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - provision for a non-custodial parent to request withholding at an earlier date;
  - provision stating that payment of overdue support upon notice of withholding cannot be used as the sole basis for preventing the initiation of withholding.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

DELAWARE

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Delaware Child Support program. The following provisions in Delaware law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o 13 Section 513, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o 10 Section 913 et seq., the expedited judicial process;
- o 11 Section 30-1205 to -1209 and 13 Section 516, the state income tax refund intercept law;
- o 13 Section 513, which allows the imposition of liens on real and personal property;
- o 13 Section 516, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o 13 Section 806, which allows the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o 13 Section 514, factors to be used in the determination of support awards;
- o 13 Section 513, which provides for the inclusion of medical insurance in support orders;
- o 15 Section 502, which provides for the collection of spousal support.

Modifications of and additions to Delaware law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending 13 Section 513, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - provision for the advance notice sent to the absent parent on the trigger date to include:
    - o the amount owed;
    - o the amount to be withheld; and
    - o notice that the withholding applies to subsequent employment;
  - employer fine for refusal to hire an obligor because of the existence of a withholding order;
- o Provision in expedited judicial process which specifies written procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officer and to specify that the functions of the presiding officers include:
  - taking testimony and establishing a record;
  - evaluating evidence and making recommendations or decisions to establish and enforce orders;
  - accepting voluntary acknowledgements of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
  - entering default orders if the absent parent does not respond to notice or other State process within a reasonable period of time specified by the State;
- o Amending 11 Section 30-1205 to -1209 and 13 Section 516, the state income tax refund intercept law, to include:
  - provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
  - procedures for prompt refund or distribution of collections;

--procedure for revenue agency to provide absent parent's address and Social Security Number to IV-D agency.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

FLORIDA

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Florida Child Support program. The following provisions in Florida law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Section 409.2567, which provides for equal treatment of AFDC and non-AFDC clients;
- o Section 61.1301 and Section 61.13015, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Section 61.1352, which allows the imposition of liens on an obligor's real and personal property;
- o Section 61.1354, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Section 61.001 and Section 409.2554, which provide for the collection of spousal support.

Modifications of and additions to Florida law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Section 61.1301 and Section 61.13015, the mandatory income withholding law, to include a provision for the advance notice sent to the absent parent to include notice of the State action to be taken upon the receipt of a contest;
- o Provision specifying mandatory use of an expedited process to establish and enforce support orders in intrastate and interstate cases and to include:
  - provision stating that the presiding officer cannot be a judge;
  - procedure for temporary orders to be entered by the expedited process in complex cases;
  - provision for orders to have the same force and effect as judicial orders;
  - provision to protect the due process rights of the parties;
  - procedure to provide the parties with copies of the order;
  - procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officers;
  - the functions performed by the presiding officers must include:
    - o taking testimony and establishing a record;

  - make procedure mandatory when arrearage is over $1000;
  - include a procedure for advance notice to the absent parent and for an opportunity to contest the accuracy of the information.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

Note: On October 9, 1986, the Council of the District of Columbia enacted D.C. Act 6-212, which contains many of the requirements of P.L. 98-378. The Act however must still be considered by the Congress before the District of Columbia can be declared in compliance with the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984.

GUAM

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Guam Child Support program. The following provision in Guam law contains the following features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2814, which implements a fee for non-AFDC services;
- o Guam Code Annotated Sections 2830 through 2846, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2823, the income tax refund intercept;
- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2824, which allows a court to require a parent to post a bond or security to insure future support payments;
- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2828, which allows the release of information concerning an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies;
- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2826, which provides for the inclusion of medical support in child support orders;
- o Guam Code Annotated Section 2833, which provides for the enforcement of spousal support.

Modifications of and additions to Guam law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Guam Code Annotated Section 2828 through Section 2846, the mandatory income withholding law, to include:
  - triggering of withholding when the amount of arrearages equals the amount of one month's support;
  - provision for non-custodial parent to request withholding at an earlier date;
  - provision for advance notice to be sent to the absent parent on the trigger date;
  - provision limiting obligor's defenses to mistakes of fact in contested withholding cases;
  - provision stating that payment of overdue support upon notice of withholding cannot be used as the sole basis for preventing the initiation of withholding;
  - provision for prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee;
- * Provision specifying mandatory use of an expedited process to establish and enforce support orders in intrastate and interstate cases and to include:
  - *provision stating that the presiding officer cannot be a judge;
  - *procedure for temporary orders to be entered by the expedited process in complex cases;
  - *provision for orders to have the same force and effect as judicial orders;
  - *provision to protect the due process rights of the parties;
  - *procedure to provide the parties with copies of the order;
  - *procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officers;
  - *the functions performed by the presiding officers must include:
    - o taking testimony and establishing a record;

- o evaluating evidence and making recommendations or decisions to establish and enforce orders;
- o accepting voluntary acknowledgement of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
- o entering default orders if the absent parent does not respond to notice or other Territorial process within a reasonable period of time specified by the State.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

* Asterisks indicate those provisions for which there is no state legislation, or inadequate legislation, but which have been implemented in total or in part either administratively or by state regulation. Therefore, legislative activity may be unnecessary.

PUERTO RICO

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Puerto Rico Child Support program. The following provisions in Puerto Rico law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o 3 Section 2111-2, which provides for equal treatment for both non-AFDC and AFDC clients and for a fee chargeable for non-AFDC services;
- o 30 Section 1801 et seq., the imposition of liens on real property;
- o 31 Section 505, which allows the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o Section 23 of Senate Bill 413 (1985), which allows the release of information regarding an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit agencies.

Modifications of and additions to Puerto Rico law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending Sections 6, 7, and 8 of Act 106 of 1985 to provide for mandatory income withholding for all IV-D cases, and to include:
  - elimination of the need to return to court to initiate the withholding;
  - the amount withheld includes current support and payment towards the liquidation of arrearages;
  - provision to allow State to allocate withheld amounts among multiple orders;
  - provision stating that payment of overdue support upon notice of withholding cannot be used as the sole basis for preventing the initiation of withholding;
  - provision for termination of withholding under which payment of overdue support cannot be the sole basis for termination;
  - provision for advance notice to be sent to the absent parent, including the following:
    - o notice that withholding applies to subsequent employment;
    - o State action upon receipt of contest;
    - o notice that withholding will commence if there is no appeal within said time frame;
  - provision for State to notify obligor of outcome of contest, the withholding time frame, if appropriate, and the contents of the notice to the employer within 45 days of the contest;
  - procedure for advance notice to the employer which specifies the amount to be withheld and any information necessary for the employer to comply with the withholding order;
  - procedure for notice to be sent to the employer immediately if the absent parent does not contest the withholding within the time frame available;
  - provision for prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee;
- o Provision for withholding to be a part of all support orders issued or modified after 10-1-85;

- o Provision specifying mandatory use of an expedited process to establish and enforce support orders in intrastate and interstate cases and to include:
  - provision stating that the presiding officer cannot be a judge;
  - procedure for temporary orders to be entered by the expedited process in complex cases;
  - provision for orders to have the same force and effect as judicial orders;
  - provision to protect the due process rights of the parties;
  - procedure to provide the parties with copies of the order;
  - procedures to insure the qualifications of the presiding officers;
  - the functions performed by the presiding officers must include:
    - o taking testimony and establishing a record;
    - o evaluating evidence and making recommendations or decisions to establish and enforce orders;
    - o accepting voluntary acknowledgement of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support to be paid;
    - o entering default orders if the absent parent does not respond to notice or other State process within a reasonable period of time specified by the State;
- o Amending Section 5 of Act 106 of 1985, the income tax refund intercept law, to include:
  - provision to notify non-AFDC custodial parents if AFDC arrearages are satisfied first;
  - procedures for prompt refund or distribution of collections;
- o Amending 30 Section 1801 et seq., concerning the imposition of liens, to indicate that the process is mandatory in all IV-D cases;
- o Amending Section 56.3 of the Rules of Civil Procedure to include a provision requiring that the absent parent receive advance notice including the procedures to contest the impending action in compliance with the State's due process requirements.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

The federal Child Support Amendments of 1984 mandate certain legislative modifications of the Virgin Islands Child Support program. The following provisions in Virgin Islands law contain many of the features mandated by P.L. 98-378:

- o 16 Section 352, the mandatory income withholding law;
- o 16 Section 355, which provides for an expedited administrative process;
- o 16 Section 354 and 33 Section 1828, the income tax refund intercept law;
- o 5 Section 425, provisions allowing for the imposition of liens against real and personal property;
- o 16 Section 365, the provision by which a court may require a parent to post a bond or security;
- o 16 Section 291, which allows the establishment of paternity until a minor's 18th birthday;
- o 16 Section 366, which allows the release of information regarding an obligor's child support obligation to consumer credit reporting agencies;
- o 16 Section 341(g), which provides for the inclusion of medical support in child support orders.

Modifications of and additions to Virgin Islands law to meet the Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 would include:

- o Amending 16 Section 352, the mandatory income withholding law, to include a provision requiring prompt distribution of withheld amounts to the obligee.

A state may request an exemption from any of these requirements. To request an exemption from the Department of Health and Human Services, the state need only submit copies of existing administrative regulations or court rules that show compliance with any of these provisions or data to support alternative practices.

APPENDIX A

STATE OPTIONS

In addition to those provisions mandated by the federal Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984, states are presented with optional provisions, which may be incorporated into a state's child support program. These options contained in P.L. 98-378 include:

- o Withholding may be triggered at any time prior to the accrual of arrearages equal to one month's support.
- o An employer's fee for withholding may be imposed, but the employer may waive it.
- o Withholding may be extended to forms of income other than wages.
- o Payment through the withholding agency may be requested by the absent or custodial parent on payment of an annual fee not to exceed actual costs or $25, whichever is less.
- o Expedited processes may be extended to include the establishment of paternity.
- o States may elect to report arrearages of less than $1,000 to credit bureaus.
- o Collection techniques may be used to offset overdue amounts for individuals who are over the age of majority.
- o The non-AFDC application fee of no more than $25, although required, may be charged to the custodial parent, the noncustodial parent, or it may be absorbed by the state at its own expense.
- o The above fee may be retained by political subdivisions.
- o The first funds collected through state income tax refund intercept may be applied to arrearages assigned to the state.
- o A late payment fee of not less than 3 percent and not more than 6 percent may be imposed on overdue support payable to the absent parent, but may not be collected until overdue support is satisfied and cannot reduce amount paid for the child.

ANNOUNCEMENT SPECIAL FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

State child support enforcement programs insure that parents honor their financial obligations to their children. The Child Support Enforcement Amendments of 1984 require new state statutory language regarding these programs. The Child Support Enforcement Project of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) currently has funds available to conduct on-site technical assistance to aid state legislators in a variety of areas for assessing problems and identifying solutions to improve their state programs, including help with assessing program activities, developing and drafting legislation, preparing testimony for committee hearings, and conducting workshops geared to the particular needs of the state. Funds are available, upon approval of the Office of Child Support Enforcement, to facilitate these activities by providing experts from other states--legislators, academicians, and prominent individuals from the private sector. The services offered above reflect work we have already completed in many states. Project staff are pleased to work with you on these or similar activities. They are also available to assist your state in designing a program tailored to your state's specific needs.

If you are interested in more information, or would like to request on-site assistance from our staff, please contact Mark Weston, Manager, Child Support Enforcement Project, at the National Conference of State Legislatures, 303/623-7800.

The NCSL Child Support Enforcement Project

The NCSL Child Support Enforcement Project began its eighth year of service to the 50 state legislatures on July 15, 1986, under a three-year contract with the Office of Child Support Enforcement, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The focus of the project will continue to be to provide information and technical assistance to legislators who are interested in making their state child support enforcement programs more effective. During the new contract period, project services, all of which are provided free to legislators and their staffs, will include:

Technical Assistance

Each year, the project will provide on-site technical assistance to 15 states. In the past, technical assistance has taken a variety of forms according to the specific and unique needs of each state. It has involved legislative analysis, bill drafting, research, testimony before committees, program evaluation, and workshops.

Information Releases

Over the years, the project has developed numerous publications for dissemination to legislators, legislative staff, and state administrators. In 1986, four information releases will be published, all of which will be available upon request.

Information Clearinghouse

The project operates a legislative information clearinghouse. Since its inception, the project has responded to thousands of requests for information, research, and materials each year.

Legislative Advisory Committee

In 1986, the project established a Child Support Enforcement Legislative Advisory Committee. A subcommittee of the Task Force on Children, Youth, and Families, the advisory committee will identify the needs of state legislatures with regard to child support enforcement and advise the project on many of its activities. The committee will meet three times annually.
